

ABSTRACT

A software-controlled computational component for processing input data is provided that includes a control program 148 for controlling the operation of a first computational component, an input for input data, and an output for output data. Each of the machine code for the control program, the input data, and the output data are expressed in a markup language, such as Extensible Markup Language.

J:4366/-34/patent application.doc